The Armed Forces Covenant Grant Fund

If you are a member of the Armed Forces, a veteran, or a family member, the Armed Forces Covenant is committed to delivering a wide variety of support to ensure you are being treated fairly.

To strengthen delivery of the Covenant in the community, the Covenant Grant Fund has £10m available each year to support initiatives which link to 4 broad funding themes. They are: removing barriers to family life; extra support after service for those that need help; measures to integrate military and civilian communities and allow the Armed Forces community to participate as citizens; and non-core healthcare services for veterans.

Since the launch of the fund in 2015, Wiltshire has benefited from more than £1m towards small and large local initiatives. Successful small, local projects have ranged from: a community festival at Wellington College; a theatre and workshop programme around stress and military mental health; a school garden project; and the training of Armed Forces dependants to work with Age UK as fitness instructors.

Applications to the local grant scheme can be made by:

- a registered charity
- a local authority
- a school
- a Community Interest Company or
- an Armed Forces unit with a UIN.

Larger grants have supported veterans in the criminal justice system, Our Wilton Trust and just recently, Families in Stress. Under the Families in Stress priority, projects will support forces families who are experiencing a significant stressful life event and would benefit from specialised, localised support. These life events could include: bereavement, domestic abuse, mental health problems or life changing injuries. Projects will work with local units, Army Welfare and the Army Families Federation to identify need.

The latest intervention to receive Covenant funding is the Veterans' Gateway. Just launched, the Gateway is a dedicated 24 hours a day, 7 days a week service to put veterans in touch with the help they need. It has been created to make it easier to navigate through the large number of organisations that exist to support those who have served in the Armed Forces. A consortium of military charities including the Royal British Legion have come together to set up a one-stop service, staffed by skilled advisers. A wider group of 26 partners from military and other charity sectors have currently signed up to be a part of the Veterans' Gateway and further partners will continue to be recruited after its full launch during the week of 22nd May.

The new i-mail InTouch Service

The new i-mail InTouch system took over from the e-bluey on 1st April. This new system allows users to send up to eight pages, including high definition photographs and documents for free.

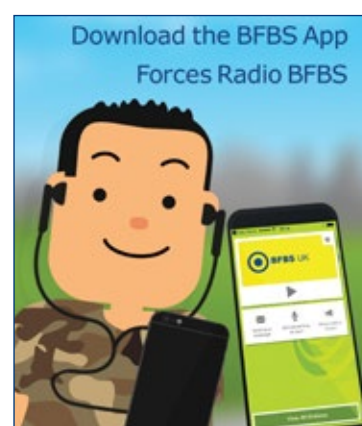

The letters are originally sent via email, but are received in hard copy. Despite the ever-growing use of Wi-Fi and mobile data-based technology, and the increased use of social media networks and apps, (including Whatsapp, Facebook, Skype and iMessage), Service personnel deployed overseas still highly value receiving physical mail.

Register at : www.neopost.co.uk/intouch

Once an account has been registered, Service personnel, their friends and families are able to create a mail message using either a computer or internet-enabled personal electronic device at www.imail.co.uk. This can be done anywhere across the globe.

Once a document has been composed it is electronically encrypted and sent to the imail server. The server routes the item to the nearest UK Mail print centre, where it is securely printed by state-of-the-art equipment. Letters are machine-enveloped and all mail is sent for onward delivery to BFPO Northolt, the MOD's mail sorting depot, to be despatched across the globe within the military mail system.

I-mail InTouch is a service delivered on behalf of the MOD. The service has been established and is monitored by the Permanent Joint Headquarters in Northwood. BFPO's role in the provision of this service is limited to the 'final mile' delivery of mail from the BFPO Northolt sorting depot to BFPO addresses across the globe.

Re-Writing the History Books ?

Archaeological discoveries of unprecedented significance on a site destined for future Army housing in Larkhill are demonstrating how World War 1 soldiers from all over the Commonwealth received the best possible training to prepare them for warfare in the trenches of Northern France and Belgium. The evidence discovered shows that training was far more comprehensive than was previously thought and may redefine the perception that troops were sent to France with little or no training.

Just before Christmas last year, archaeologists working for the MOD announced that a complete 'text book' set of trenches had been found in Larkhill - British (blue) and German (red) on the above map. Now, a unique 8 km network of tunnels has been found, 5-9 metres below the surface, showing that mining was also a weapon of war.

Artefacts discovered at the site show that soldiers lived, ate and slept in this trench and tunnel system, training with live ammunition and filling moments of boredom by carving their names on the soft chalk walls.

Most exciting was the discovery of a chalk plaque inscribed with the names of Australian Bombers - soldiers specially trained to use hand grenades. One name is of Private Lawrence Carthage Weathers, who won the Victoria Cross in September 1918 for attacking a machine gun post with grenades, capturing it and taking 180 prisoners.

Blackened areas on the Larkhill tunnel walls show that the tunnels were lit by candlelight while the sappers and miners dug their way through the chalk, developing methods of setting explosives and listening for signs of tunnel-digging from the enemy trenches. These are exactly the tactics which were used in France and Belgium in 1916 -18 : The Somme in 1916 began with a number of mines blown, while the Battle of Messines began on 7th June 1917 with the detonation of 19 mines under the German trenches.

"This is the first time anyone has found and excavated training tunnels like these," said Martin Brown, (WYG), Archaeological Consultant to the Army Basing Programme. "We found them as part of the largest single investigation of First World War training trenches anywhere in the world and our excavations have revealed this story for the first time."

The archaeological survey of the site which led to these discoveries, is part of the process to obtain planning consent to build over 400 new quarters in Larkhill. This is part of wider plans to accommodate 4,000 additional Service personnel and their families who will be based on and around the Salisbury Plain Training Area by 2019, under the Army Basing Programme.

In addition to the tunnels, a wealth of prehistoric remains, including a Neolithic enclosure some 600 years older than Stonehenge has been discovered. This enclosure will be preserved as a feature in the layout of the new Army housing which will be built on the site.

The tunnels have been carefully 3D-mapped to preserve them for future generations, but have now been carefully in-filled ready for the new houses to be built.

Tidworth Community Awards 2017

The annual Community Awards ceremony took place on 27th April at The Wellington Academy, attended by Mrs Sarah Rose Troughton, the Lord Lieutenant for Wiltshire. Certificates were presented to everyone who received a nomination and the winners in each category were as follows :

The Wiltshire Constabulary (Paul Oatway) Shield for the most valuable contribution to activities for young people was presented to Sally Matton for her outstanding contribution towards village life in Everleigh.

The Schools Challenge Shield goes to an individual or group whose contribution has benefited pupils or a school. This year, the shield was awarded to The 'Wellington Academy Heroes', a group of students from the school who offer a number of services to students both at the Academy and some of the local primary schools.

The Tesco Shield is awarded to the person who has shown the most imagination, determination and commitment in achieving charitable fundraising targets. This year the shield was awarded to Brian Sprigg, an 80-year old stalwart member of the Ludgershall Friday Club who runs bingo and raffles to raise funds for an annual seaside trip and Christmas lunch.

The Garrison Commander's Award recognises contributions to the Garrison's involvement locally, from which closer ties between our military and civilian communities have directly resulted.

This year it was awarded to CSgt Wayne Moss, Royal Welsh, who took it upon himself to organise a Christmas dinner on Christmas Eve for those in Tidworth who would otherwise have been on their own over the holiday period. His energy and leadership in rallying the community to get involved was outstanding. The award was presented by Garrison Commander, Colonel Steve Lawton and collected on CSgt Moss's behalf by Capt Lisa Butterworth.

The Tidworth & District Chamber of Commerce Cup is awarded to the business that has contributed the most to its local community. This year it was awarded to Nell Light and her company, Home Instead. 17 years in the RAMC gave Nell the skills she needed to set up her companionship-based home care company, to help older people to remain living where they are happiest. Nell is also a lead member of Tidworth Community Area's Dementia Action Alliance.

The Andover Advertiser Shield, was awarded to Lauren Norris who raised thousands of pounds for the NSPCC Ashdown Centre.

The Aspire Defence Award for the environment was awarded to Cllr Brian Pratt for his work as Chairman of the Tidworth Engagement Committee, organising the 'Keep Tidworth Tidy' litter picks and setting up the Dementia Friends Alliance in Tidworth.

The Community Challenge Shield the Community's top award for the year, is selected from the winners of these 7 categories by the Chairman of the Tidworth Area Board and the TCAA Organising Committee. This year the Challenge Shield was awarded to Mr Brian Sprigg.

At the end of the evening, the Lord Lieutenant presented a Lifetime Achievement Award to Cllr Charles Howard LVO who, following two successful careers in the Army and the City, is now standing down this month as Wiltshire County Councillor for the Collingbournes and Netheravon, at the age of 80.

Congratulations to everyone, including other military personnel and dependants who were nominated for their community efforts, including : WO1 (RSM) Richard Hines RE, Sgt Troy Reynolds RE, Cpl Cara Amos SIB RMP, Cpl Matthew Bracken RMP, Cpl Joshua Vosakiwawai R WELSH, Maj Nick Carey ACF, AWS Community Development Worker, Joyce Stretton, and Sarah Simpson from Headquarters TNB Garrison.

Operation CAMERA

The Army has in its sights anyone with a potentially winning photo of the British Army.

'Op Camera' is a new category in the annual Army Photographic Competition previously not open to the public.

"We've got great photographers in the Army," said Command Master Photographer WO1 Will Craig, "But we realised that lots of other people have fabulous photos of what we do, including members of the public and our colleagues in the Royal Navy and the RAF. This year we're inviting everyone to enter. It's your Army, so let's see the great pictures you've got!"

The Army has also created a special new category for cadet organisations; open to all young people in the Army Cadet Force or any section of the Combined Cadet Force.

Other categories in the Army Photographic Competition - including video, for social media - remain open to any Regular Army and Army Reserve personnel, as well as cadets, including the Army's University Officer Training Corps. Ministry of Defence civilians who work directly for the Army can also enter.

"We're also asking the public to vote for their favourite picture," said Mr Craig. "If you follow the Army channels on Facebook and Instagram you'll be able to take part".

Closing date for entries is Wednesday 27th September 2017, with full details at www.army.mod.uk/photocomp

News of 5 RIFLES in Estonia

The UK-led NATO Enhanced Forward Presence deployment in Estonia has been launched at a flag raising ceremony at an Estonian military base in Tapa. The 800-strong British-led battle group, under the command of Lt Col Mark Wilson, will work with Estonian, French and Danish partners to face any potential aggression.

The UK has committed more than 300 vehicles to support Estonia during this deployment, including Warrior infantry fighting vehicles, Challenger 2 tanks, AS90 self-propelled artillery guns and Terrier, Titan and Trojan armoured battlefield engineer vehicles.

This deployment to Estonia takes the total British deployment in Eastern Europe to nearly 1,000, with 150 UK personnel to the presence in Poland - part of the UK's support of the US-led EFP battalion there. NATO is also establishing battlegroups in Latvia and Lithuania.

UK commitments in the region will be boosted further by the deployment of RAF Typhoon aircraft to Romania, set to arrive over the next few weeks, to carry out a NATO Air Policing mission in the Black Sea.

We are a military Scuba Diving Club affiliated with the British Sub Aqua Club (BSAC) and we welcome all military and qualified civilians. The club is based in Bulford and serves the Garrison towns of Larkhill, Andover, Tidworth, Upavon, Netheravon and wider units and Reservists.

If you or your spouse are military, and you already have a BSAC dive qualification and would like to 'go diving' then this is the club for you!

If you have qualified with other agencies i.e. PADI / SSI but would like to dive with us, conversion is easy and straightforward however it's not necessary. We can also facilitate your Unit to experience 'Try-Dives' or offer tailored 'learn to dive' packages for group expeditions or other requirements. As a military club we have some great facilities available, at fantastic prices, and we have the flexibility to meet your training needs. We are an active club, open to all tri-service serving personal and qualified civilians. Call us on 07582 - 527461

Red Devils support the Wiltshire Air Ambulance

Soldiers from Netheravon based Parachute Regiment Freefall Team, 'The Red Devils', kicked off their 2017 parachute display season by making a jump at Holders Field in Amesbury on 6th April in aid of the County's Air Ambulance Air Base Appeal.

Amongst those who watched were children from the local schools who also had the chance to chat with the Paratroopers.

On their first public jump in the UK this year Regimental Lieutenant Colonel of The Parachute Regiment, Lt Col Bruce Radbourne said:

"We choose to support the Wiltshire Airbase Appeal as the team are based just up the road in Netheravon, local to Amesbury and we view the Wiltshire Air Ambulance as such an essential thing for the local community, and the Red Devils feel part of the local community."

The custom-built airbase at Semington, near Melksham requires £1.25 million to complete the project, and the funds raised by the Parachute Freefall Team today will go towards completing the building and equipping of Wiltshire's Air Ambulance new home.

Cas Loudon, Donor Relationship Co-ordinator at Wiltshire Air Ambulance, said: "The display by The Red Devils was a spectacular experience and we'd like to thank them for choosing to raise funds for our Airbase Appeal. We have a close working relationship with the Army as our helicopter frequently has to fly over Salisbury Plain to attend emergency incidents and our highly trained paramedics have attended incidents on Salisbury Plain over the years".
