65th Anniversary of the Battle of Britain commemorated at Netheravon

Two Tornado jets flew low over the Officers' Mess at Netheravon on 14th September, in salute to the brave airmen who fought 65 years ago in the Battle of Britain.

Airfield Camp at Netheravon played a significant part in both World Wars. The black and white half timbered buildings date from 1913 and the Officers' Mess bears the distinctive badge of the Royal Flying Corps, the precursor of the RAF.

The commemorative Battle of Britain lunch was attended by Air Commodore Bob McAlpine and Maj Gen The Duke of Westminster, Assistant Chief of the Defence Staff (Reserves and Cadets) and organised by the Air Support Operation Centre. The occasion was used as an opportunity to raise funds for the RAF and Army Benevolent Funds.

Sustain the Plain

The "Sustain the Plain" (STP) programme is run by a partnership of organisations in Wiltshire with the aim of making sustainable improvements to the quality of rural life in the Salisbury Plain area, ensuring best use is made of its unique natural and cultural heritage.

The programme falls under a European Union scheme for rural development called LEADER+, which in England is managed by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA).

The Project Management Group which oversees the programme strategy is made up of County and District Councils, local organisations and the MOD.

Army Officers run for Charity

Just eight months after recovering from an operation to remove a brain tumour, Lieutenant Richard Lowe, from 222 Sig Sqn, 3DSR based in Bulford, took part in the BUPA Great North Run in aid of Epilepsy Action. "I started having seizures a year ago and soon after was diagnosed with having a brain tumour, which was successfully removed in January this year," he said. "To be suddenly struck down was very alarming ... and it has proved to me that it doesn't matter how fit you are, you can suffer from the condition for a number of reasons".

Richard was taking part in the race with his girlfriend, Lieutenant Sophie Brigden, AGC ETS, an Instructor at 10 AEC in Tidworth. "This is certainly a worthwhile cause and one well worth raising funds for", she said.

The money raised by Richard and Sophie will help fund vital advice and information services provided by the charity which helps more than 497,000 people every year.

Tidworth Sub Aqua Club (TIDSAC) ... Come on Down !

If you have harboured the ambition to try scuba diving, then this is your chance to realise your ambition ! Learning to scuba dive with TIDSAC is available to all Service personnel and their dependants over the age of 14 and medically fit. If you have already qualified as a scuba diver, you will find plenty of opportunities to go diving or enhance your skills. This year the Club has run diving trips to Gibraltar, Spain and the South Coast of England.

Learning to scuba dive with TIDSAC could save you a small fortune compared to local clubs and will set you up for that Maldives or Red Sea trip ! If you are running a unit EXPED and have a pre-exercise scuba diving training need then look no further than TIDSAC where you will find willing and widely experienced instructors. The Club meets on Tuesday evenings in Building 54 Delhi Barracks and runs theory and pool training on a regular basis. If you are interested or have any questions then please call Sgt John Naylor on 94322 5777 or 787 962 2214 or Maj (Retd) Phil Gill on 94342 2600 for further details.

10th October is World Mental Health Day ...

"Men Behaving Sadly"

Stress is something that we all encounter. It is widely accepted that many people are likely to experience stress in response to life changes such as moving house, getting married or coping with bereavement.

A degree of stress is also vital in order to perform effectively and get going. This is especially relevant to the Army population who are at times exposed to frightening and dangerous circumstances on operations.

Stress means different things to different people. A situation which is intolerable to one person may prove stimulating to another. The degree of stress we feel is determined not only by events and changes in the outside world, but in the way that we perceive the situation and respond to it. The important thing is that we can learn to recognise our own responses to stress and develop skills to deal with it.

Whilst stress and depression are not directly related, enduring stress and hardship may lead to depression.

Depression is an illness that affects both men and women. However, men are less likely to request help given the traditional view of being tough and self-reliant. Instead of talking about how they feel, men attempt to make themselves feel better often by drinking more or simply ignoring the problem.

It is vital that stigma associated with mental health problems is reduced in order to maximise numbers of personnel fit for task. If people do not feel able to ask for help, problems will be concealed and often escalate in severity, resulting in inefficiency and disharmony, both at home and in the workplace. Often all people require is some assistance to look at their difficulties in another way. This in itself may result in a change towards more positive thinking and improved mood.

In addition, in order to achieve and maintain sound mental health it is vital to keep physically fit via regular exercise, prioritising time to relax, having sufficient sleep and eating a healthy diet. Communication is also very important in order to minimise stress both within personal relationships and in the occupational environment. Alcohol is never helpful. Contrary to popular belief that its use aids relaxation, alcohol results in lowering of mood and disturbs sleep. It is also a very powerful method of exacerbating problems, often leading to domestic violence, deliberate self harm, demotion and imprisonment.

The Department of Community Mental Health is based in Tidworth. Its primary aim is to ensure that personnel are mentally, psychologically and emotionally fit for task. In order to achieve this the team, comprising of specialist mental health workers, provides a treatment and advice service to serving personnel and Commanders. Unfortunately, the service cannot be accessed by dependents.

It is worthy to note that stress and depression is not rank related and can affect each and every one of us. It is therefore the responsibility of Commanders at all levels to ensure that the mental and psychological health of their colleagues and subordinates is treated with the same level of sensitivity as any form of physical injury.

For further information please contact your UMO.

Kennet Black Box Recycling Service extended ...

During the fortnight beginning 3rd October, Kennet District Council will be extending its black box multi-material kerbside collection service. For residents in Tidworth, this will mean a change of collection day.

All residents will receive a leaflet through the post detailing when their new collection day is and reminding them what can be put into their black recycling box.

If you require additional information, please contact Mary Treener at Kennet District Council on 01380 - 734784 or email mary.treener@kennet.gov.uk

Making things happen ...

Tidworth Community Area Partnership (TCAP) has produced a Strategic Action Plan which will take forward the ideas in the Community Plan produced in December 2003, following consultation with the local community.

Colonel Carron Snagge, the Chairman of TCAP says :

"The Strategic Action Plan is a great opportunity to implement the aspirations that were set out in our Community Plan ... This is a really useful document that gives everyone a meaningful agenda to follow over the next few years. With the necessary support, this plan will allow us to produce tangible benefits for all the residents of our community".

The Tidworth Community Area covers the parishes of Chute, Chute Forest, Collingbourne Ducis, Collingbourne Kingston, Everleigh, Ludgershall, Tidcombe, Fosbury and the town of Tidworth (including Perham Down).

Secretary of State urges Service Personnel to Register to Vote

Armed Forces personnel and their families are being urged to register to vote by the Secretary of State for Defence, John Reid MP. Launching the MOD's campaign last month, he said :

"We ask a lot from our Armed Forces, and often in the name of democracy. It is our duty to encourage and enable our Service men and women to vote, after all this is a right they work hard to secure for others around the world."

The Electoral Commission has produced an easy-to-follow booklet called 'Register to Vote', containing a Service registration form and explaining the different registration routes open to Armed Forces personnel. It is being delivered to all units and HIVEs.

Armed Forces personnel have a choice in the way they register to vote, depending on their personal circumstances :

Those based in the UK and unlikely to be posted overseas in the next year may choose to register as a civilian elector, by filling in and returning the annual canvass form that is delivered to every household between September and October;

Those based abroad, or with the possibility of being posted abroad, should consider registering as a Service voter. This gives personnel more flexibility because it allows them to remain registered at an address in the UK, even if they move abroad as short notice.

As readers of Drumbeat found out last month, you can't vote in elections unless you are on the Register of Electors. The Register is also one of the most important checks for credit referencing.

Blue Light Day 2005

Watched by visitors to Blue Light Day, held this year at the Tidworth Leisure Centre, 721 Sqn EOD RLC demonstrated how the remote-controlled "wheelbarrow" can easily open a car door to search inside a vehicle for a suspect package or explosive device.

News from the MDP

Recent crime analysis has shown that thieves are targeting unattended vehicles parked on MOD property in the Wiltshire area, so Ministry of Defence Police are urging motorists to take a few sensible precautions to protect their property from thieves when they park on Salisbury Plain.

"Never leave anything on display when you park your vehicle", Sgt Mark Venning from the Salisbury Plain Station said. "Even an old coat or a plastic bag can tempt a thief".

Sgt Venning also warned people against riding or driving a motor vehicle on Salisbury Plain that does not comply with Road Traffic legislation. "Although private property, Military Lands byelaws are constantly in force", he said. "The MDP regularly issue fixed penalty notices or report for magistrates court summons".

MDP also have the power to seize any vehicle contravening byelaws as forfeit to the Crown. "The use of go-peds and mini motorcycles are defined as mechanically propelled vehicles. Ministry of Defence policy is that such vehicles will not be used on MOD land, including married quarter areas", he added.
